

The Right Stuff

Christine Hardy has compassion for others

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

CHRISTINE HARDY looks like a typical teenager: long blond hair, over-sized t-shirt, jeans. She laughs often, tucked into the corner of the couch in the living room of her Harburn Road home. Her exuberance matches her youthfulness as she talks about high school dances, friends, putting on skits and what she saw on television last night.

But there aren't many teenagers who you'll hear saying things like this: "I guess it's where the Lord put me. I pray about where I should be."

Or this: "You meet a lot of interesting people at church. You'd never think Christians could be so much fun!"

Even her t-shirt is not the norm. It's called "Lord's Gym" and shows a man bench-pressing a huge cross on his back. The cross says "sins of the world." The back of the t-shirt says "His Pain, Your Gain" and has a picture of a nail piercing through a man's palm.

However, Christine once again sounds like a typical teenager when she wonders aloud whether she'll get up enough nerve to wear the t-shirt to school. It is a bit graphic and religious messages aren't the trendiest fashion statements of 1994. "I know I'll wear it to school but I don't know when," she says.

Such openness about faith and religion are not common among peer-conscience teenagers. The Grade 11 student admits that when she started going to the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School two years ago, she didn't talk much about her inner thoughts and just followed the crowd. As she got older, she grew more confident and today it's no secret that her idea of a fun time is going to her church's youth group get-togethers.

It is because of this openness, and the fact that she puts her faith into action, that Christine was awarded the Fred Elson Award for Commitment to Social Issues. Christine was nominated by her teachers and was caught totally by surprise last October, when the award was announced. Fred Elson is a retired minister and Gelert resident who was one of the founders of HAVE. Help A Village Effort raises funds for water wells in Third World countries.

"I was thrilled," says the 17-year-old on her reaction to the honour.

She's still not sure why the teachers felt she deserved the special distinction, but maybe it's got something to do with the fact that for the last two summers, Christine has been a volunteer counsellor at Camp Medeba in West Guilford.

"The people you meet there make up for the money (or lack thereof)," bubbles Christine. The camp's directors are also involved with the youth group at Lakeside Baptist Church and the Vertical Club, a non-denominational club that gets together twice a month. ("You just go and be yourself and we have a hoot.")

At Camp Medeba, the focus is on religion and fun - lots of fun, especially on the obstacle course and at the lake. For two weeks of the summer, Christine worked exclusively with Laura Plouffe, a six-year-old girl with Down's Syndrome.

"I really feel strongly about helping out kids with special needs," says Christine, who has also participated in the school's puppet show about children with special needs, Kids on the Block. Laura needs a lot of supervision, but for all the help Christine gives Laura, Laura gives back. "You learn a lot from them."

Even Christine's nine-year-old sister Lianna will give her a good reference as a camp counsellor. "Sometimes she's really funny," says Lianna. Asked what makes Christine a good older sister, Lianna smiles and says "she's nice. She lets me sleep in her bed when she's away."

Christine has taken this love of children into the classroom already. As part of the high school's co-op program, she spends part of her week in Darlene Hill's Grade 2 class at Victoria Street School. "It's great. She's had me involved in all kinds of stuff. It's amazing."

Next year, she's planning to go to the Baptist Leadership Education Centre in Whitby. The 24 students study regular Grade 12 classes but "it's more to help you choose where you should be going in life and improve your devotional time."

She has wondered whether she has a calling to go into the ministry, but feels that right now, there are simply too many options available to her. She wants to work with children, but she doesn't want to be a teacher. She wants to be involved with the church, but she's not sure if she wants to be a minister. For all the questions and uncertainty, however, there's a lot of excitement about the future.

Faith has always been a part of Christine's family life, but her own personal beliefs grew stronger after the death of an older brother. She tried many ways of coping with her pain and her grief, and true solace only came through her strengthening belief in God.

"When you feel there's no one to turn to, it's good to know there is someone," she says.

Recently she was talking to a fellow student who said that no one loved her. Christine spurted out, "Jesus loves you."

"It sounded so corny but I just had to say it," she says. "I can't be quiet. I'm too excited about it. I can't keep it secret."

She does wonder how some of her friends will react to her saying such things in a newspaper, but for Christine, it's part of who she is, and why her teachers nominated her for the award. So many people have been turned off religion because of the scandals of impropriety and the televangelical demands for money, but she wants to portray a different image of someone who lives by her faith.

"There are a lot of things you can do. You just have to make the right choices," says Christine Hardy, left, whose faith has led her along a different path than some teenagers. She was awarded the Fred Elson Award for Commitment to Social Issues at the last HHSS commencement for her volunteer work with children with special needs. Even her younger sister, Lianna, above, gives Christine a glowing vote of approval

"I like to go out with friends and have a good time like everyone else," she says. But when she does go out, she's usually the designated driver. Too many teenagers think the only entertainment in a small town is getting drunk, and at school, many conversations revolve around parties and drinking. "You hear people say they had so much fun at a pit party, but did they really like it when their head was stuck in a toilet?"

Life is full of fun things, she says. She and her friends often go to Camp Medeba, where there's a big inner tube run and of course, the vertical wall for indoor climbing. They laugh, they dance, they act like teenagers, but they do it without the aid of alcohol.

"There are a lot of things you can do," she says. "You just have to make the right choices."

And the teachers at HHSS certainly felt Christine was the right choice for an award which recognizes a dedication to helping others.

HHSS rookie journalist joins the Echo team

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

YOU NEVER KNOW what's going to happen when you write a story. Last year, the Echo wrote about the high school's co-op program. As a result of interviewing the students, their employers and the program's co-ordinator, the Echo was sold on the program's merits. So we decided to take the plunge and sign on. The paper's first co-op student came on board last week, and in the next few months, readers can expect to see Keith McKelvey's by-line every week.

Keith is a Grade 12 student who thinks he'd like to become a journalist. "I just like writing," he says, and journalism seemed like an interesting profession. However, when he approached Chris Duchene at the guidance office, she said that most journalism schools require field training. So she asked him if he'd like to get that experience through the co-op program, and he said yes. She then asked the Echo if we would take Keith on until school ends in June and we said yes. He'll work here for a half day every day, and spend the rest of his time at school.

"I hope that I can learn how stories are written in the paper and learn all the procedures," he says.

At first, Keith will concentrate on events and people at the high school. Assignments will help him develop his interviewing and writing skills, and perhaps even his photography skills. On Mondays he'll be part of our regular production crew, becoming familiar with the myriad of tasks that must be done before the paper is sent to the printing plant.

Keith is the son of Mary and Max McKelvey of Minden. As well as working at the Echo, Keith also has part-time jobs at Dollo's IGA and Double D Catering. And until they lost a playoff berth a few weeks ago, he and his teammates on the Minden Midgets were skating up a storm. Keith has played hockey since he was seven, and now his teammates are also his best friends.

"My friends and I have all played together over the years," he says. "We get along and we know each other pretty well - it's like a brotherhood."

In his not-so-spare time, he also enjoys downhill skiing at Sir Sam's.

If Keith does pursue his goal of becoming a journalist, he'll have a lot of competition, and that's one of the reasons why the Echo decided to get involved with the co-op program. Because there are so many applicants, most journalism schools require that students already have some clippings - just to be considered for the course. As well, in this job market, students need all the help they can get in building a good résumé.

It's important for local businesses to invest in local young people's futures. It's not going to be easy for them to start their careers and they need to know that others are willing to support them. The co-op program is a way of giving students a vote of confidence to get them on their way to a prosperous career.

"I hope that I can learn how stories are written in the paper, and learn all the procedures," says Echo co-op student Keith McKelvey

A hot Snowball in Dorset

Festival's record crowds bask in sunshine and good times

Clockwise from top right: Dan Edsall and Doug Biggar of the North Muskoka Diving Club. Tom Spivak and Phil Ward of Living History Associates display some frontier clothing and weaponry. The horse drawn wagon was a popular ride and the sun brought out the volleyball players. The Drinkwater sisters, Lindsay(4) and Mackenzie (2), put on a happy face for the day.

Above top Mimi Jones, all in white, was dressed for the occasion if not the weather. And young Dustin Bradley enjoyed the kids snowmobile course.

It was more like a summer lake celebration than Dorset's Snowball festival on February 18 and 19. With temperatures climbing into the 50s on Saturday, spectators at events on Little Trading Bay were more likely to get sunburn than frost bite. The good weather helped make the fourth year of the festival, held last Friday and Saturday – the most successful ever. "We sold all of our event buttons – one thousand of them," said an elated Cecily Steele, one of the organizers. "That's the most ever. It's a lot of work to get involved but it's worth it."

A cold land with a warm heart

by LINDA SHUTT
Staff Reporter

IF THE COUNTY NEEDS a couple of public relations people, it can find them up at the high school in the form of two very happy exchange students.

Signe Mandrup Christophsen, from Denmark, and Johanna Roy, from Sweden, are full of praise for the Highlands and its people after more than four months in the county.

Both students come from large towns and are enjoying the experience of small town life as well as the social mores of a different country.

Their excellent English is now scattered with a teenage vernacular of "likes" and "kindas" as they describe the warm welcome they got in Haliburton County.

"One thing I'm really, really glad about is that it's a small town. People are aware of you here," said Christophsen, who is sponsored by the Rotary Club. She has been living with Rotary families in Minden since her arrival in Haliburton County last August. "I kinda feel when you meet people here, before they even know you they take you into their family."

Roy agrees that's a big difference between here and her home in a large urban centre.

"It's easy to get to know people. They come up to you and ask how you are. At home we wouldn't really notice a new face," said Roy, whose trip was sponsored by Student Travel Schools. She is living with the Lancias on Little Redstone Lake. (Christophsen is doing a tour of Minden homes - staying with the Lowes, the Monks, the Roodenbays and the Muli family.)

Roy's school, in her hometown of Gothenburg in the southwest part of Sweden, has more than 2,000 students, about 1,300 more than there are at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. So it's easy to get lost in the crowd at home.

The industrial port city of Gothenburg is the second largest city in Sweden, behind the capital of Stockholm, and has a population of more than 425,000 people.

Christophsen also comes from a major centre. Odense is the third largest city in Denmark with more than 170,000 people.

Quite a change to the entire County of Haliburton's 13,000 permanent residents scattered over its 4,169 square miles.

That's another difference, too. The perception of distance.

"At home everything is close," said

Two visitors from Europe, Signe Mandrup Christophsen and Johanna Roy, have found that the Highlands provides a warm welcome, even of its climate is a little chilly!

Christophsen. Here she has found a trip to Minden is a big deal.

Christophsen also understands Haliburton's primary industry, the business of tourism. Odense is the birthplace of the fairy tale writer Hans Christian Andersen and its main church is the 13th century St. Kruds Church.

Roy's home city also has plenty of history. It was founded in 1619 and its cathedral dates back to 1633. Her home region also has the most temperate climate in Sweden. So although her country, like Canada, is often perceived as snowbound, Roy has been enjoying the different weather experience here.

While they didn't know anything about Haliburton, both students knew enough about Canada to make it their first choice for a Rotary exchange. They also knew enough to realize it would be a different experience to visiting the United States.

We may not be able to tell the difference any longer but they can.

"Students (in the exchange program) always want to go to the States. I wanted to do something different. I pictured the beautiful scenery but I was also thinking about the Canadian people," said Christophsen.

She said she's found Canadians to be "more European-minded" in their thinking than Americans. She's just returned from a brief trip to Florida, where people under 18 have been given a curfew in an effort to curb crime.

"Weird things like that," she said, highlight the differences between the two countries.

The court-ordered curfew in Florida is the extreme end of one of the major differences both women have noticed between teenagers here and at home.

Both are 17-years-old and said that at home they are treated like young adults.

Here, they say, parents seem to be reluctant to give their children responsibility at that age.

"You are treated much more like a child," said Roy. Some of their own experience here is because of the responsibility for their welfare borne by their hosting families. But they said they see their school friends treated the same.

"At home we are given more responsibility, we make our own decisions. We don't have curfews and things like that," said Roy. Three or four years ago, perhaps, but not now. "I can set my own time, I don't have to say exactly what I'm doing, who I'm with..."

That might contribute to the parties getting a little wild here when they do happen. That and the limited entertainment. From their life with city theatres and movies and restaurants and parties, the limits in Haliburton can be a constraint.

But they've found learning new things - water skiing and downhill skiing for example - have been pleasing alternatives.

From their vantage point as visitors - standing on the sideline in effect - they've also been able to watch some of the teenage rituals.

Boy-girl relationships are a little different from home.

"We don't have the 'dating' thing," said Christophsen, using her fingers to put quotation marks around the word dating.

If a couple does go out as a couple it would be presumed to be for a long-term relationship. Otherwise, meetings are casual. And it wouldn't be frowned on for a girl to ask the boy out.

"Here you're expected to wait for the guy to ask," said Christophsen, with a laugh at the idea of it.

Plus bragging about 'conquests' by both sexes (a fact both women observe with amused disbelief) just isn't cool at home.

Regardless of the differences, they will leave behind some good friends when they leave in the spring, friends who have made them feel welcome far from home.

"I probably grew up a bit more," said Roy. "You have to be on your own...The experience to be away and see you can handle that."

Christophsen agreed.

"It's important to learn to get along with different cultures, it's really important to see that and to be able to tell people (at home)."

They said they would both recommend Canada to their friends, but with a warning.

"Bring your warm clothes," said Christophsen.

From Bach to Gershwin

Critically acclaimed singers visit Highlands

by JEANNE ANTHON
Haliburton Highlands Concert Series

MAUREEN FORRESTER described Elmer Iseler as "a fabulous artist who weaves his singers into a beautiful tapestry of song."

Dr Iseler, who will be bringing the 20-member Elmer Iseler Singers to Haliburton this Sunday, also founded and conducts the 190-voice Toronto Mendelssohn Choir who perform regularly with the Toronto Symphony, the Festival Singers of Canada and has led all three choirs to worldwide acclaim. The Elmer Iseler Singers, in their capacity as the professional core of the Mendelssohn Choir have won critical acclaim at the Edinburgh Festival, London's Royal Albert Hall and Carnegie Hall since their debut performance in 1979. They are a highly trained virtuoso group that sings Bach, Tippet or Gershwin with the same easy intensity that Iseler brings to conducting them. Their travels have taken them all over Europe and the Far East, with regular dates in the U.S.

"The ensemble is vivacious and disciplined to its core," said the Corpus Christi Times (Texas). "The choir performs as a single instrument, like a living pipe organ, replete with a broad rainbow of tone." Another critic, Arnold Edinborough of The Financial Post, called their concert "a masterpiece". He proceeded to describe the conductor Elmer Iseler as "a tall, well-built person whose body language to his choristers and players seems to squeeze great music out of them. His great bald dome of a head is framed by a luxuriant silver mane of hair that flies as fast as the notes do under his baton. Born in Port Colborne, Ont., Elmer was a singer before he became a conductor, which is perhaps why he can mold his choirs into such elegance of sound. But he is perhaps best known for his relentless pursuit of excellence, along with a determination to produce a range of music from the 16th century to the present."

The award-winning Elmer Iseler Singers will be performing at the Haliburton Legion on Sunday night

Elmer knows the choir as instruments - when to beckon and encourage the singers, when to back off and leave them to their instinct.

Based in Toronto, The Singers are a three-time winner of the coveted Grand Prix du Disque du Canada. They are frequently involved in radio and television broadcasts for the CBC and a wide variety of recording projects including the soundtrack for the film "Agnes of God". The raves of the international music industry follow their many recording which will be on sale at the concert.

High Fidelity Magazine, New York, wrote: "The performance by the Elmer Iseler Singers are nothing short of sensational....Clarity of line, textual expression, rhythmic accuracy, balance, and a deeply felt sense of musicianship all converge in one of the best choral groups I know."

For great family entertainment, aspiring performers, and the insatiable music lover in all of us, here is our chance to hear the one the world's superb choirs when they visit as guests of the Haliburton Highlands Concert Series

Performances this Sunday evening, Feb. 27/94 at 7:30 p.m in the Haliburton Legion Hall. Admittance is with series ticket or single seats may be purchased at the door: Adults $17.00 and Students $10.00. Call 286-1218 for more info. (Also on sale Sunday night will be subscription tickets for the 94-95 Series featuring Wingfield's Folly with Rod Beattie's third hilarious portrayal of rural life; Ioan Harea, virtuoso violinist; and the Algonquin Trio featuring piano, cello and violin.)

Art and Me

by Marion J. Hare

TWO EVENTS COMING SOON to Haliburton started me puzzling over the words "art" and "craft" and what we imply when we use these terms. The two events: Celebration '94: Members Show—the Guild's annual show of works by members, March 5 to April 2 – and The Elmer Iseler Singers coming on February 27.

The words "art" and "craft" are not stated in either of the announcements but what a mixture of implied meanings come to mind. For example, at the Gallery show both arts and crafts will be exhibited and judged and awarded prizes for artistic merit and craftsmanship.

In the other event, The Elmer Iseler Singers, we will hear one of Canada's finest vocal ensembles practising their craft. They are likely to wow us with the artistic renderings of their songs. Those are just a few examples of the ways in which we use the terms "art" and "craft" and their derivatives.

What exactly do we mean when we use the words, "art," "artist," "artistic," and "craft," "craftsman," "craftsmanship"?

Centuries ago, during the middle ages "the arts" implying liberal arts did not include painting and sculpture etc. Literature with a strong emphasis on poetry, and philosophical pursuits, especially logic, dominated. These arts encompassed activities of the mind and the search for knowledge with inspiration seemingly a factor.

This was different from the technical endeavors thought to be the primary concern of painters, sculptors, who were called craftsmen (or craftsmen although the one term, craftsman, referred to both genders just as did the word, artist) for theirs was seen to be a hands on profession. Those hands made things like paintings and sculptures as well as more utilitarian objects. The resulting creations were perceived to be primarily the result of training not inspiration. In fact the shape of the works were most often suggested by those who commissioned them.

Gradually the idea emerged that some of these craftsman created works of considerable originality even within the framework of the instructions of the commission. This then led to the thought that inspiration coming from a force beyond mere skill might be involved.

By the time of Michelangelo at the end of the Renaissance period, the painter or sculptor as inspired genius was recognized—one whose mind created original works that could only have come from that particular human being. (Michelangelo's rendering of the Sistine Ceiling in the Vatican can attest to the validity of that conclusion). Since inspiration could only come from innate talent and was unattainable by mere practise, the term "art" or more specifically "fine art" gradually became bestowed upon the professions of painting and sculpture for they seemed to require the greatest degree of inspiration, of thought.

From this evolved during the next century the two separate categories within the framework of objects created by the hands. Craft involved mainly skill in the ability to follow prescribed instructions and patterns as with the women who were the famous lace makers of Bruges, or the men and women who wove the incredible tapestries from designated patterns (or cartoons as they were called) that lined the damp cold walls of castles and monasteries. Their work when it excelled was highly prized.

Painting and sculpture became distinct professions and the idea of the creative artistic genius as one to be revered gradually slipped into the thinking and writings of the times. Then the profession of art as opposed to craft came to denote a profession of a higher calling.

This division remained relatively firm until the late 1800s when various forces were brought to bear to blur the distinction. Some felt that works of art were becoming too esoteric and that crafts were thought of as too pedantic and thus the two should be recombined—a mutual celebration of the skill of the hands combined with the inspiration of the mind. From this sprang the modern arts and crafts movement and the beginning of the blurring of the definitions of the terms "art" and "craft."

We still refer, however, to painting for example as art and to weaving as craft—the one creative, the other technical. As soon as I make that seemingly clear distinction I find it too simplistic, for over time we have come to shade the descriptive terms, "artistic" and "craftsmanship" with implications not inherent in the words. Craftsmanship suggests mere competence whereas artistic implies something special.

I thought of two people who have practised a craft—my Grandmother who was still winning first prize for her exquisite tatting at the Peterborough Fair at age 92, and Fred Pratt, a Haliburton stone mason, who has recently constructed an aesthetically delightful stone wall at our cottage on Redstone Lake. Was my Grandmother an artist because of the exquisiteness of her tatting or a craftswoman for her work was singular in the level of its craftsmanship? And Fred Pratt, how should he be described—an artist because each wall he creates is a unique aesthetic experience or craftsman, for his work demands primarily a finely honed technique?

The results of the implications when we use these terms threatens to make them obsolete and we begin to substitute such non-descriptive words as "works" in our attempts not to be judgmental. Oh! for the days before the Renaissance when the distinctions were clear—those who did were craftsmen and those who thought were artists.

Whatever the designations we, who are merely the spectators, can as ever be so impressed with those who are willing to share their creative efforts with us. When we attend the concert on Sunday evening, February 27 at the Legion Hall we can revel in the highly refined artistry of The Elmer Iseler Singers practising their craft for our benefit. Then when we visit the Art Gallery in March we can both appreciate the technical dexterity that is required to make even the simplest of items and, at the same time, enjoy aspects of the artistry evident in these creations. And, in that way, we can say thank you.

Their tight close harmony and lively manner is further enhanced by the enjoyable volume at which the concert is presented. They are known for not being too loud, so come bring a friend for an evening you will long treasure. There is no admission charge. A free-will offering will be received.

Nursery and refreshments provided.

Chumbley-Sisson toboggan party a big success

West Guilford
Eleanor Cooper - 754-2278
Best wishes to Dwight Sisson for sound recovery from injuries sustained in a bush accident.

Bev Sisson is visiting her sister, Jackie Roberts, in the Edmonton area for two weeks.
Our deepest sympathy to Isabelle Porath in the death of her husband Herb last week.
The annual Chumbley-Sisson toboggan party on Feb. 12 was a great success with 19 kids from St. Andrew's Sunday school and about 10 adults participating in the downhill snow fun.

Our rector, the Rev. Greaves, his wife Dianne and their sons enjoyed a week's vacation in the Collingwood area recently.

Blanch Barry celebrated her 85th birthday on Tuesday Feb. 15 with open house at her home in the afternoon and dinner later on which was attended and supplied by the family. Blanche received lots of cards, visitors and 13 long distance calls. Many happy returns from West Guilford.

Residents' artistry decorates Valentine's Day dinner tables

Senior League Winnifred Barnum - 286-2140

Saturday - this is the start of another real winter week. The day started out a little more active than usual. We had two tables of euchre in the auditorium. Sue Crego, a young lady who is doing volunteer duties Fridays and Saturdays, managed the games. The morning passed pleasantly. The remainder of the day was quiet.

Sunday was a little warmer although it snowed gently most of the day. We enjoyed and sincerely thank Estella Burch for reading more of the book, dinner of herbs. About 4 o'clock Terry and Norma phoned to say they were taking me out for dinner, so I missed chapel service with Rev. John Burgess and Ellen Rawlings, who played the organ.

Monday the Discoveries clothing people were here most of the day so very little else was done as far as residents' activities were concerned. In the evening the Salvation Army from Fenelon Falls came for a hymn sing-along.

Tuesday morning Chapel service was conducted by Pastor Fast. Pastor Fast plays the accompaniment for the hymns on his guitar. In the evening Pearl Cowen helped us play cards until bed time snack.

Wednesday morning there was fitness in the auditorium with Diane and there was a video in the auditorium in the afternoon.

Thursday was the tea party. The ladies from Minden Peoples Bible Church provided a delicious tea. They began with a program of hymn singing and readings of love. Beth Carol sang several hymns, Mrs. Fast also sang a couple of hymns. Marion Fisher read several poems about different kinds of love. The ladies who came were Lenore Prentice, June Mason, Marion Fisher, Pat Scott, Dorothy Walker, Sue Robertson and Carol Jones. After the blessing we enjoyed the delicious tea.

Kathy Woods called Bingo for us in the evening. Thanks Kathy for calling Bingo and for the valentines.

Friday was Ruby Lewis's birthday. We wish her a happy birthday. It was also Marjory Shuyler's birthday - Happy birthday Marjory.

Friday evening was our annual dinner and it was followed by an Auction Sale. We had the pleasure of delightful singing and guitar playing by Gordon Kidd between the dinner and the auction.

The auditorium was decorated with red and white lanterns and large plastic heart shaped balloons. The tables were beautifully arranged with white cloths, red placemats and red serviettes. These are all made by the residents. The tables were arranged and set up by Doris Robertson and Linda Fry. The delicious dinner was prepared and served by the dietary staff under the directions of Lynn Shirley.

Gary McKnight, administrator, started the evening by welcoming the guests who were Jim McMahon, County Warden and George Simmons, Chairman, Committee of Management. The Auction was under the excellent management of Doris Robertson (Auctioneer), Muriel Harrington, Gary McKnight and Peter Fearley.

Our sincere thanks to everyone who contributed articles for sale and to all those who so heartily and quickly made there bids. We sincerely thank them. Overall it was a very pleasant and successful evening. $833.50 was raised, this will surely shove our thermometer even higher.

As well, our thanks to all the volunteers who showed that they care about the Residents' well being.

GLADYS MCNEELY

I received the Lord Jesus Christ as my Saviour in mid life. Captain Bailey, a Christian minister in our area led me to the Lord. In 1976 my husband Lloyd trusted Christ. Both of us were baptized by immersion in Jordan Lake. After Lloyd's long illness of several heart attacks and his battle with cancer the Lord took him home in 1984. All of this was difficult but with Christ in my heart I was supported through these hard times. I'm pleased to attend Harcourt Chapel 2 or 3 services each Sunday and the mid week Bible Study. I know I hear the Word of God there. The friendly people at the Chapel have become like family. I appreciate this very much.

SUNDAY SERVICES ARE AT 11:00a.m. and 7:00p.m.

NEW LEGISLATION

Criminal Harassment (Anti-Stalking Law)

"Criminal Harassment" the so-called anti-stalking provision, which is new legislation, is intended to deal with situations where a person is subjected to harassing behaviour, for example, by a former spouse or by a rejected and obsessive admirer.

We are only beginning to understand the terror of this type of behaviour. Section 264 (2) of the criminal code states;

Prohibited conduct:

- (a) repeatedly following from place to place the other person or anyone known to them;
- (b) repeatedly communicating with, either directly or indirectly, the other person or anyone known to them;
- (c) besetting or watching the dwelling-house, or place where the other person, or anyone known to them, resides, works, carries on a business or happens to be; or
- (d) engaging in threatening conduct directed at the other person or any member of their family.

Loop carnival offered weekend of fun

Wilberforce
Flo Elliott - 448-2618

The Loop Carnival at Highland Grove was very successful this year. There were six entrants in the Doggie Parade, which was held in front of many interested observers. The first prize went to "Amber", owned by Stephanie and Rob Metzger of Highland Grove. Second place went to "Wanda", owned by Sheila Raverstock of Gilmour, and third place went to "Kate", owned by Ranger Powell of Highland Grove. Special thanks to all entrants. The luncheon was well attended and really enjoyed by all. The Fish Derby had many interested entrants. The total weight prize was won by Barry Bowers.

The Kids Trophy was won by Bernie Hogan. The largest speckled trout was caught by Darin McCormack, the largest splake by Perry Roy. The largest lake trout was brought in by Bam Lockwood and the biggest rainbow was caught by Candice Roy.

The weather was cold but mostly sunny and everyone had a good week-end of fun. Congratulations to the organizers on a successful weekend.

There were seven tables at the euchre party on Feb. 11th. The lone hand prize was won by Betty Hayward, the ladies high by Irma Dunford, men's high by Edward Hogan, ladies low by Luella Hogan and the men's low by Gwen Saunders. The door prize was won by Warren Bowen.

Sorry to have to tell you that Yoli Favret is back in hospital. She is in St. Joseph Hospital in Peterborough. She would really appreciate a card from any of her friends. She is coming along quite well, so perhaps she will not have to stay too long.

On visiting the mall in Peterborough last week, it was amazing to see the Laura Secord candy counter so crowded with mostly young men. I wondered what was going on, until I remembered it was Valentine's day. Everyone must have been buying a sweet for their sweetie.

Lent begins on Feb. 15th this year and Easter is on April 3rd. Does that mean it will be an early spring? How welcome that would be after all the cold weather we have had this year.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the families of Alva Northcott of Tory Hill and Mrs. Iva Hunter of Gooderham. Both of these ladies passed away last week.

I don't very often complain about anything, but I have one little pet peeve. It's wonderful to watch the Olympics and see the best athletes in the world compete, but must there be so many advertisements. They go on so long, I think they are trying for a world record, too. There must be a better way to fund some of these important events, but everything seems to come down to money, and it seems too bad somehow.

Nothing can destroy precious gift

Legion Branch 129
Keith Whiten

Dear Comrades, I apologize for the hiatus in this column over the last few weeks. So much has been going on within my little sphere during this period, that I have not been able to devote the time that I should.

A Ham and Turkey roll is being held on Saturday March 26th, just in time for Easter. First roll off scheduled for 1400 hrs. Sunday March 6th, the Zone F4 convention will be hosted by Br. 186, Cannington, and everybody will be welcome. Details are available in the Branch. The 1994 District F Convention is being held at Br. 43, Oshawa, April 29th to May 1st.

Within the branch, weekly Bingo continues to do well, starting at 1930 every Wednesday evening. Come on out and beat those winter BLAHS! Darts on Mondays for seniors and on Tuesdays for all members are still well attended, as is the Euchre night also held on Tuesdays.

The Seniors Club meets on the third Thursday of every month. Membership costs only $5 per annum, and is open to anyone over the age of 55, and this entitles you to purchase an excellent meal for $2, and enjoy a terrific evening out at the same time. You do not have to be a member of the Legion to join, everybody is most welcome.

As 1994 progresses, please remember that this year is the 50th Anniversary of the Normandy landings, and the beginning of the end to World War II. Many of our Comrades were involved in this and it is hoped that this will be suitably recognized.

As many comrades will be aware, my family and I were subjected to a terrible tragedy last month, when our home was lost to fire. Having sent my wife and daughter for assistance, I stood and watched my home burn believing that I had lost everything. I was never more wrong! Neighbours, local businesses, the 4Cs, the Red Cross Society, the Eastern Star, Cde. Bill Juby and Br. 129, Cde. Wally chamber and the Legion Poppy fund, the Tuesday night Dart League, and some very special friends, Rex and Elsie Massey, Doreen Hawman, Frank Barnum, Lesley Tusch, Dave and Dorothy Stirrett, Marney Chambers, Bruce McKay, Owen and Kina Burmania, Sheila Burk, Laurie Bonfield, Lou and Joan McCorriston, staff from Hyland Crest and Haliburton Hospital, Bill and Nancy Roberts and many others have shown such kindness and generosity, that proves that in this community, nothing can destroy that most precious gift, love and friendship. We thank you all, with all our hearts. We shall never forget.

SCOTT WEDDING: Guy and Lorie Scott celebrated their January 14 wedding with a family dinner in Lindsay. The couple is residing in Kinmount.

Highlands theatre offers prize for a new logo design

The Highlands Little Theatre is an adult community theatre group founded in 1979 by a group of residents of Haliburton and surrounding area. Their purpose was to provide live theatre entertainment to the community for the enjoyment of all, actors and audiences alike. Over the years the quality of entertainment, through experience, hard work and knowledge gained from others, has become more refined and professional in appearance. The group undertakes one-act, full-length and musical productions with very large casts. The Highlands Little Theatre has won awards for acting and directing, and received honourable mentions and award nominations for costume and set design and acting at drama festivals (competitions). We were proud to host the Eastern Ontario Drama League's annual one-act festival in Haliburton in November, 1992. It was here that members and audiences alike were able to see that the Highlands Little Theatre could compete with the best of community groups anywhere.

Up to this point in time, the group has only ever been recognized by its name, Highlands Little Theatre. The membership would now like to adopt a logo for the group which can be used on our letterhead, programs, posters, etc. To this end, we invite you to enter a contest to create a logo for the group and look forward to receiving all your creative efforts.

Here are the contest rules:

- All entries should be on paper not larger than 8-1/2"x11" and not smaller than 4"x6", in black or blue ink;
- Contestant's name, address and phone number should be on the back of the design;
- The winning logo must be simple in design and able to be enlarged or reduced easily (ie. to fit tickets, letterhead or posters, etc.);
- The contest is open to all permanent or seasonal residents of Haliburton County. Entries must be received on or before March 15, 1994;
- Entries will be returned if accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope;
- All decisions of the Logo Selection Committee are final and the winning logo will become the property of the Highlands Little Theatre;
- Send all entries to: Highlands Little Theatre, c/o Box 1038, Haliburton, Ontario, K0M 1S0.

Prize: $100. cash.

W.I. gets ready for summer

Minden Women's Institute

Jeanne Sears - 286-1538

Some 13 members of Minden Women's Institute met at the Library Cultural Centre for their meeting of Feb. 16th with Jean Lacey, President, welcoming us.

The usual reports were given followed by the reading of a Resolution and members may send letters to Minister of Environment regarding disposal of used car tires for partial fuel at St. Mary's Cement Kiln. Then Irene Moore reported sending 14 cards since Jan. meeting and collections were taken for this Fund and Pennies for Friendship.

Mary Cox then gave us some new details about Minden Fair and we planned for items at our annual Fair Exhibit with members doing various crafts.

Next Monday, District Director J. Sears, and alternate Mary Wilson, District Pres. and Jean Lacey District Vice Pres. will attend the Victoria East Board meeting at Baddow centre.

We then saw dusting mitts and a plastic needle-point article and we will work on some of these at our next meeting, courtesy of Mary Wilson. Articles will then be sold at our summer bake sales.

There were several jokes by Mary Wilson and Bette Herlihey and a verse by Maud Coulter.

Of note is that next meeting will be March 16 and we should try to be 'Wearing the Green' so near St. Patrick's Day. This will be at 2 at this same place and we welcome newcomers.

Following the adjournment, the little draw was won by Nancy Gayton and all enjoyed the snacks and tea or coffee and a chat with others.

BAHA'I FAITH

This is, truly, that which the Spirit of God (Jesus Christ) hath announced, when He came with truth unto you, He with Whom the Jewish doctors disputed, till at last they perpetrated what hath made the Holy Spirit to lament, and the tears of them that have near access to God to flow.
